MAY MEETING:

Tuesday, May 21st at 7:00 PM. The club meets at the NC University Club at 4200 Hillsboro St. Meals available for purchase. Topic is Artificial Reefs. Speaker is Nick Hendrix from NCDMF.

New member feedback:

“I recently joined the Raleigh Saltwater Club in order to learn about fishing in the big pond and to get to know some other people in the area. This year I had the pleasure of joining Vick and crew for the Bonito outing and had an absolute blast. They were incredibly patient, answered all 800 of my questions and made me feel very welcome on their boat. They were kind enough to share equipment, crank baits, and offer advice on technique. Under their guidance, I found a little beginners luck and caught a 23” Bonito (which they said was a pretty good). I can guarantee you it had nothing to do with skill - I just did what I was told to do. They gave me some cooking advice and I was able to share the bounty with my family. I would encourage all the beginners in the club to get over their fears and join an outing. There is no better way to learn than by life’s experiences.”

March 19th Member Meeting

The best place to find great information on the many different approaches to catching fish is often members of our club. That proved to be true again as we learned about kayak fishing at our March meeting. Club member Chris DiGiovanna gave a great presentation on Kayak Fishing 101. Chris walked us through reasons for kayak fishing, types of kayaks, means of propulsion, outfitting your kayak, and ultimately where and how to catch fish. It was clear from the questions and responses, we have a lot of interest in kayak fishing in our club. For those of you who missed it, here are a few of his slides with some useful information and some impressive fish:

February 20th Member Meeting

We are off to a great start for the year. Our February meeting was another good introduction to the experiences we have ahead. If you didn't sell something you don't use or buy something you will use, you missed a good opportunity. Thank you to the members who set up tables and brought some things to sell. As usual, the "Swap Shop" included the swapping of fishing stories and tactics.

A highlight of the February meeting was the awards from our 2023 Fish Cards. We celebrated the best reported catches of the year. The winners are:

Greg Brissette, 4.9-pound black sea bass

Fred Adams, 26-inch grey trout

Chris Morris, 8-pound flounder

Chris DiGiovanna, 20-inch bluefish

Victor Tucker, 17-pound grouper and 25-pound blackfin tuna

Tripp Adams, 33-inch amberjack

Steve Kuekes, 40-pound Wahoo

Samantha Carroll (Lady Angler), 42-inch red drum

Robert Makowski, 24-inch spiny dogfish

Owen Lowdermilk, 41.5-pound dolphin

Jessica Carroll (Youth Angler), 45-inch dolphin

Greg Ray, 14-inch sheepshead

Our speaker for the meeting was Capt. Lee Winkleman of Top Gun Fishing Charters. Lee shared his tactics for black sea bass fishing. Capt. Lee talked about finding the fish, using the right rigs, and just what it takes to get more and bigger fish in the boat. Several members of the club have fished with Capt. Lee and can attest to his ability to put you on the fish.

We had a few fish cards submitted recently. We also ask for more details about your catch for the newsletter.

Tripp Adams 5/5/2024 Small Boat Bonito 22 inches

Fred Adams, Greg Brissett, and I went out of bogue inlet prepared for cobia, bonito, and Spanish. While it was too choppy for cobia, we trolled for 4 hours catching bonito, Spanish, and false albacore. Our first bonito hit a small cedar plug. The largest bonito hit a silver Clark spoon attached to a bird on the long line. We had a bit of a scare coming out of bogue inlet, taking a breaker over the bow. Otherwise, it was a great day. - Tripp Adams

RSWSFC Bonito Outing April 20th, 2024

Nine boats Participated

Bonito Challenge Champion is Josh Tucker (Anchor911)—
24 ½” Bonito. Honorable mention goes to Will Owen (Half Seas) 5 fish boated.

Other participants:

Will Owen – HALF SEAS - Five Bonito

Victor Tucker – Anchor911—Three Bonito

Greg Brissette – Emerald Mist—Three bonito

Steve Kuekes – Salty Tapir -Three Bonito

Brian Johnson – 24”

Greg Brissette – 19 7/8”

John McQuaid – 19”

Steve Kuekes - 14”

Victor Tucker / Anchor 911

Crew with anchor 911, included Victor and Josh Tucker, BJ Medlin and new member Brian Johnson.

We launched from wildlife ramp at radio island and were also greeted with flashes of lightning. After looking at the radar we continued to the ocean and stopped at the area I have caught blackfins in the past. We decided to proceed to AR 315. We had an issue with a throttle bolt that came out and were not able to run over 8 knots. We trolled for about an hour and decide to go back to the ramp to get better tools. While we were at the ramp we witnessed a boat slide off the trailer onto the concrete ramp.
Luckily the outboards were in the up position. It must not have been the first time it had happened because he never stopped and pushed the boat the remaining way in the water. Really felt bad for those guys and it made my problem seem none existent. After 10 mins with the right tools we were headed back out the inlet. This was Brian's first trip for bonito and he set the bar pretty high by catching a 23" fl , 24 1/2" total bonito, BJ followed up with 19 3/8" fl. Josh finished up with a 23 1/4" fl for a total of 3 bonito. All were caught casting plugs on light tackle. I really look forward to sharing our entire adventure with the group at our next meeting.

Will Owen / HALF SEAS:

Greg Brissette / Emerald Mist:

3 Bonito with no electronics on board. 20", 19 7/8" and a 13".
3 Legal Spanish Macks

John McQuaid / SECOND CHANCE:

Fished with David Parker and Chris Niver. We got an early start and were 6 minutes from AR-315 at 6:10 am when lightening flashed. After more flashes and consulting the weather radar we went all the way back to Anchorage marina to wait out the weather. Finally left the dock at 7:30. Did some other fishing and finally got to AR-315 at 9:30 instead of 6:15. Trolled around the group of 25+ boats and caught three small keeper Spanish. We were trolling about 10:15 and saw breaking fish about 50 yards from us. Were the first boat to the fish, cast to them, and two of us hooked up. I landed mine, 19". We saw one other landed by another boat and fished that area hard for quite a while. Caught a keeper Gray Trout jigging Bonita jigs.

Never expected to catch a Bonita after 8:00 am. Really enjoyed fishing with Chris and David. A good day on the water!

Scott & Maree Vahue:

This was the 1st time I have gone out for bonito. I had my wife Maree, Craig Belcher and Dave Cobb with me and we gave it our best shot as newbies to this type of fishing. We started out at the Barge in hopes to avoid some of the crowds but had no luck there so we rode to AR330 and again had no luck. We decided that we would join the crowds so we went to AR320. We were trolling 2 deep divers one pink and one silver as well as 2 different Clark spoons. We trolled around 320 for a short time then finally saw some bonito busting and all the boats scrambling to get to them. They were gone within a minute or two. At that point we stopped trolling and started casting metal as we waited for the bonito to surface again. They came up 2 or three times but unfortunately we were unable to hook up with any. We then decided we would try AR315 and troll around for a while. This is when we were able to hook into 4 Spanish. They were all caught on a pink/silver Clark spoon on a #1 planer. Dave is the one with all the luck and he didn't even brag about being the luckiest guy on the boat LOL. Overall we didn't have a real productive day but we had great time together. This was a great opportunity to get to know some other members in our club. We are all looking forward to more of these types of opportunities.

Ty Blauser / DIRTY BANANA: PENDING...

Andrew Jefferies / Skimmer

I got an early start, got to AR315 by 7:15 or so. Trey was right... there were already 25+ boats there. Only time I've seen it that thick is in the fall for albies. Honestly, I didn't see anyone tearing it up though. Lot of small fish over the rail.

I pulled spoons and divers for a while but got nothing. I ran over to 320 where only 10-15 boats were — substantially less fishing pressure. I continued to troll. I saw 2 brief times in an hour where the bonito boiled up on the surface for several seconds then dove. I got a few casts in, got one hookup but got spit out.

Later I went back to 315 but by that point, there were scuba divers on the wrecks and my experience is that spooks fish.

I later trolled along AB along the 20ft line and got a limit on blues and several undersized Spanish — a mackerel tree and a black/white deep diver Yozuri were most productive. After that I caught and released several nice blues in the breakers of the inlet — they love the shallow waters off the western point of Shack. I got home tonight.

Steve Kuekes / Salty Tapir Day 1 results:

3 bonito 13", 13.5", and 14"

4 Spanish, all small and released

All caught before 11am. At ar-315. With 40 other boats.

Owen Lowdermilk / Line Cutter

Six Undersize Spanish Macks

2 – twenty-two inch Grey Trout

Released a dozen

Will Owen / HALF SEAS

This was my first outing W/ RSWSFC, so thanks for letting me tag along. My crew left the dock Sat AM at 6AM sharp...out of inlet at 6:15 and made b-line to 315 along w/ every other boat east of 95. Started by trolling (1 spoon on planer, one spoon on a bird, and one deep diver) and after a relatively short period with no-love and one tangle (not captains fault FTR), we saw bonito busting the surface so quickly brought in the trolling gear and starting casting metal (mixed bag of Big Nic, Thingamajig, Slingsilver, etc.). Two of us landed bonito (19-20" range) on our very first casts, which was kinda cool. By the time we got them in the boat, the school had gone back deep. Stayed in the same general area and they popped a few more times. Seemed like you could only get in a 3-4 casts before they'd go back down. Every time we'd start to get tired of waiting, and would start considering re-commencing our trolling efforts, they'd pop up 75 yards away. We chased them around a bit and dodged the crowds. We lost a couple of fish, but kept pecking away at them, and put one more on the boat. Eventually pulled in and headed for 320. It was rinse and repeat, but with 1/2 the crowd. Waited for them to surface and put one more in the cooler. As mid-late morning arrived and the bonito surfacing became less frequent, and we felt we'd sufficiently scratched the bonito itch, we decided to push out to 330/Chapin in hopes of a B-liner or other premium white meat on the bottom. Poked around for an hour or two, but no dice. Lots of ringtails, pig fish, a bazillion short black sea bass, but no keepers whatsoever. Starting to get a little hungry/thirsty so decided to head in. Rather than b-lining for inlet, we decided to detour back by 320 to see what (if anything) was happening. Much to our surprise, upon our arrival at 320 (noon-ish?), upon coming off plane, there were bonito busting the surface right in front of us. So we put another one in the boat casting metal. Ended the day with 5 bonito in the boat. I'm an idiot and did not even measure the fish. I just looked up the specs on my RTIC 45 fish cooler and website says 19 3/8" interior. We had a couple that were touching both ends of the cooler, so I'd put them in the 20ish inch range, but nothing official. Docked at Yellowfin Pub in MHC for a flounder sandwich and a couple of Modelo's. For dinner that evening, we made Poke Bowls with raw bonito marinated in Teriyaki, jasmine rice, shredded carrots, edamame, avocado, and wasabi sauce. Good stuff. 5 Stars.

Bonus info: Bumped into a friend of a friend at Yellowfin Pub who lives in MHC full time and fishes nearshore ALOT. He said to arrive even earlier....i.e. head out in the dark and be on top of 315 just prior to sunrise. Weather window for Sunday (yesterday) would be really tight/iffy with rain/storms coming at 8AM-ish, but he was going, and the beers were flowing, so he talked us into it. Got up at 4:45...left dock shortly after 5AM, and made our way out of BFT inlet. Inlet was flat calm, but there was not a single other boat in front of us, or behind us (which is quite rare for BFT inlet), and with the ominous black clouds to our south (visible even before sunrise), I was second guessing whether this was a good idea. Arrived at 315 and found only 4 boats present, including an old timer who was solo trolling in a 13' Whaler (hard core...if he's in this group, let me know.) Everyone else was on top of the reef spotlocked, including our friend from Yellowfin Pub. Upon coming off plane, we quickly realized why. There were fish (mostly bonito but with small Spanish mixed in) busting EVERYWHERE. We started casting metal and immediately hooked up. Put one of two in the box. Unlike Saturday when they'd go down and then pop up elsewhere, the fish stayed up top for probably 30-45 mins, and stayed in one spot...making the spotlock worth the $6K investment. Unfortunately, after our first few casts, they seemed to get lockjaw for us. Talked to friend via cell phone who said to use the smallest metal you have....like 1/2 oz or 3/4 oz if you have it. I typically use greater than an oz (cause I like long casts), so our menu was limited. We switched to all kinds of different metal colors and sizes, but could not buy another bite, as the fish surfaced on all sides of the boat. Watched 2 of the 3 other boats on scene (including our friend) wear them out.... Our friend caught 8-ish on a fly rod....his fishing partner caught at least that many with a chugger style bait on top. That was cool to see. Have not tried that previously but may add one to the box for next year. A few other boats showed up, but there were only 6-7 total on the reef when the heavy rain arrived as forecasted at 7:50AM, so we headed for the hill (along with the most of the crowd). Tried seared bonito tacos last night w/ chipotle marinade, but the chipotle did not compliment the natural flavor well at all, in my opinion. 1 Star

Hearing set on new fishing catch reporting requirement 04/24/2024 by Trista Talton

A fisherman casts a line into the Newport River from the Radio Island Fishing Pier in Morehead City. Photo: Dylan Ray Coastal recreational and commercial fishermen will have to report certain fish harvests under a new North Carolina law that takes effect later this year. Preliminary details are scant as to how the two state agencies tasked with overseeing the reporting requirements will implement the program, one that is slated to be discussed during a combined virtual public hearing next week.

The N.C. Marine Fisheries and N.C. Wildlife Resources commissions have opened a public comment period ending May 20 on the temporary rules, which were established under the North Carolina General Assembly's Regulatory Reform Act of 2023. The mandatory harvest reporting requirements were tucked into the controversial law, one environmental advocates referred to as a "pro-polluter" bill for cutting favors to industries that control hog and poultry farming, discharge per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances, or PFAS, and build fracked gas pipelines.

Gov. Roy Cooper vetoed the bill last October, but legislators overrode that veto, setting into motion this requirement that was not sought out by the regulatory agencies and that must now enforce it. "We do recognize that there are data gaps, particularly in the area of recreational fishing and we do have hopes that this is something that may take a while, but that can be built into a system that can fill those data gaps,” said Patricia Smith, N.C. Division of Marine Fisheries public affairs officer.

Under the law, recreational fishermen must report harvests of red drum, flounder, spotted seatrout (speckled trout), striped bass and weakfish (gray trout), to the division. Reports will most likely have to be submitted electronically through a smartphone app or computer.

Commercial fishers will have to report all fish harvested, including catch that is not sold to a dealer. This means commercial fishermen will have to include fish caught and used for bait, and fish caught and kept for personal consumption. Commercial fishermen record the catch they sell to dealers on trip-ticket forms. The dealers then submit those forms each month to the state fisheries division. The Division of Marine Fisheries uses the data gathered from the trip tickets as a means to help manage fisheries resources.

Doug Todd, a member of the North Carolina Fisheries Association’s Board of Directors and part-time commercial fisherman, has been including all of the harvest he keeps for the past few years. “If I get 5 pounds of fish I record 5 pounds of fish just so there’s a record of what’s being caught,” Todd said. “That just gives a better record of what’s being caught and used out of the ocean and around the waterways. There's no true numbers on what's being caught in the recreational zone. It's at least a start to try to get some more accurate data." Smith said that commercial fishermen will not be required to obtain a dealer's license to comply with the new harvest reporting mandate. "We're still working on a lot of details," she said. "We're just trying to get the word out now because this requires some temporary rules." The law does not require fishermen to report their discarded catch, or fish that are caught and released, information some argue would help provide a more complete picture of the impacts to species through recreational fishing. Tom Roller, a member of the state Marine Fisheries Commission and owner of WaterDog Guide Service in Beaufort, said that while the new law may seem like a burden in the short term, the hope is that the new reporting requirements will help produce better data. "It's very clear that we need better data," he said. "Recreational fishermen want better data. Commercial fishermen want better data. It's very important that we find new ways to address some of our data deficiencies. The question is whether or not this is the better way to do it." Enforcement of the new law will be phased in over the next three years. Fishermen must report their harvest beginning Dec. 1, after which time anyone found in violation of the law will receive a verbal warning. The division's Marine Patrol and the Wildlife Resources Commission's law enforcement division will start issuing warning tickets to violators of the new law Dec. 1, 2025. One year after that, violators will incur a $35 fine and face suspension of their fishing licenses and permits. While the system the state will use to collect harvest reports is being funded through a one-time, $5 million allocation, there is not funding at present to pay for additional enforcement staff in either of the state agencies. Combined, those agencies have a little more than 100 enforcement personnel, forces stretched thin by a coverage area that includes more than 300 miles of ocean shoreline, nearly two dozen inlets and thousands of estuarine coastlines, including bays, sounds and wetlands.

The agencies will host the virtual public hearing at 6 p.m. Wednesday, May 1. Pre-register for the public hearing online. Pre-registration is required. To join by phone call 833-568-8864. The webinar ID is 160 805 6277. Comments on the Marine Fisheries Commission rules may be submitted through an online form or by mail to: N.C. Marine Fisheries Commission

HOW TO SUBMIT AUTOMATED FISHING REPORTS

Dates, locations (general), tackle, bait and tips are greatly appreciated. You can easily utilize the new reporting tool on the Club's website. Fish Card: <https://www.rswsc.org/fish-cards>

Tripp made updates to the website for members to submit Fish Cards. The application for submitting information is through Google Forms and has been embedded into the website. When submitting a responses, members will have the ability to view other submissions.

“Google does require a Gmail account be used, if a picture was uploaded in the questionnaire. To make things easier, pictures will be emailed separately. We believe the ease of submitting responses and the ability to view all member results will outweigh having to submit a pictures separately.”

You can also use the form on the following page if desired and not computer savvy.

Please send in your fishing reports, Fish Cards and photos to share with members in 2022. The newsletters are much better with fishing reports and photos.

Club Website Improvements — from Tripp Adams:

With the help from Tom Zemonek and Janson Fant, the club has a new website. We launched the new RSWSC website in November of 2020.

Built on a different platform from the old site, the club site now has a more updated and professional look/feel. You will notice many of the tabs from the original site are the similar, with only a few key differences. Users will experience much faster load times and, a webpage made to fit mobile devices.

One key addition to the new website is the 'Meetings and Outings' tab. <https://www.rswsc.org/meetings-and-outings>

As the outings calendar is planned and updated, events will be added to the page. We also plan to have virtual club meetings in 2021, which will have meeting information listed. As the club grows into the new site, there is functionality to manage event registration, and event specific communication. These are transitions from our current procedures and will be adopted over time.

The other new feature is the 'Forum' tab. <https://rswsc.org/forum> visitors to the website will have to make an account to access the information. The idea behind the forum is that, this will be a great way for members to interact with each other, especially during these quarantine times. Several message board topics have already been created in the forum; members can post pictures, experiences with guide services, baits/tactics, etc. This will also be a great way for members to meet other club member who have experience in their area of the coast.

As we continue to grow into the new website, you may notice changes along the way. While much of the site was built before it was published, there are always new features that can be added or adjusted. in the long term the site should be able to handle club communication for both emails and social media postings. Some of this will be a "learn as we go" process so, bear with us.

We are open to feedback on the new website. Please do not hesitate to reach out to me with questions, suggestions, and/or recommendations. Email me at tripp.adams@field2base.com
